Re: Use of Ultra Mobile Broadband (UMB) Trademark in 3GPP2 Documentation

Dear Y.K.:

The CDMA Development Group (CDG) has submitted an application to the United States Patent and Trademark Office to register the Ultra Mobile Broadband™ and (UMB™) trade and service marks and logo. The UMB mark is to be used to identify and promote next generation products and services that will be supported by the next air interface evolution of the family of CDMA2000® standards beyond CDMA2000 1xEV-DO Revision B that was defined by the 3GPP2 Systems Requirement Document (SRD) in August 2006 and its Technology Evolution Framework (TEF) for 3GPP2 networks in November 2006.

It is the intent of the CDG to grant use of the UMB trade and service marks and logo to 3GPP2, its accredited SDOs, the ITU, and manufacturers of equipment compliant to the relevant standard, royalty free.

If the UMB mark is used, all 3GPP2 members are asked to review and to comply with the logo usage guidelines attached herein and place the following footnote at the bottom of the first page of any document containing the mark:

Ultra Mobile Broadband™ and (UMB™) are trade and service marks owned by the CDMA Development Group (CDG).

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

CDMA Development Group
